

You're not sure what happened to your body, but understanding of how to use the monolith control device to run this giant iron golem floods your mind. You have complete access to it's senses and total control of it's movements. You cannot return to your body.

